Commission consults with Ceduna industry and community about skills needs

The State's Training and Skills Commission will visit Ceduna today to consult with local industry and community leaders about skills and workforce development priorities and challenges.

Training and Skills Commission Member Lindsay Palmer said the visit was an opportunity to hear firsthand from the community about skills and training needs and participation issues for the region's economy.

"This visit provides the Commission with an opportunity to understand the challenges facing the Ceduna community as well as the economic environment," Mrs Palmer said.

"We look forward to listening to local leaders and employers to better understand the training needs of the area."

"The consultation will inform the Commission's independent advice to the Minister for Higher Education and Skills, Hon. Dr Susan Close MP about the State's skills and workforce priorities.

"The Commission provides independent, strategic advice on how South Australia can invest in a sustainable, highly skilled workforce, particularly in key growth sectors.

"This advice is crucial to meeting South Australia's economic and social needs, now and into the future."
